Speech Ray Lewis

Sentence	Metaphor/Simile	Rhetorical questions	Stories / anecdotes	Contrasts	Lists	Repetition	Moral conviction	Sentiment of the collective	Setting high expectations	Confidence in goals
I'm trying to tell y'all, God has never made a mistake.
He's never made one mistake.
Alright?
So it aint about one play.
Aint about nothing.
This year we did what we were supposed to do.
We fought as a team, we fought as a team.
There would be one Super Bowl champ crown at the end of this year.
That's it.
So the way we feel, somebody gonna feel like that tomorrow and somebody gonna feel like that in a week.
That's a fact.

And the fact is, we gotta come back and go to work to make sure we finish it next
time.
That's all we gotta do.
Remember that men,
God has never made a mistake, but don't came too far to drop
our head.
Joe, you played your
ass off.
You hear me, man?
I'm telling you man.
Don't ever — don't ever — drop your head when it comes to a loss, dog.
Cause theres too
much pain outside of this that people really going through.
This right here makes us strong.
Let's understand who
we are as a team.
Let's understand who
we are as men, and
let's make somebody
smile when we walk
out of here.
